

FAMM member publishes novel on prison life

FAMM member Seth M. Ferranti has published his first novel, "Prison Stories," which takes readers into the nether world of prison life.

Ferranti, a first-time, nonviolent offender at FCI Gilmer, W.Va., has served 12 years of his 25-year mandatory drug sentence. His work has appeared in magazines such as Don Diva, Slam and Vice. As a prison basketball journalist, he writes regularly on hoophype.com and prisonerlife.com.

"Prison Stories" tracks a drug dealer, Guero, as he makes choices and decisions that affect him during the long years he must serve in prison. "An episode of OZ couldn't capture prison drama the way Seth "Soul Man" Ferranti does in 'Prison Stories,'" says a reviewer in Don Diva magazine, and King magazine calls it "raw, honest and gripping."

Ferranti's "Prison Stories" is published by Gorilla Convict Publications (P.O. Box 492, St. Peters, MO 63376 or www.GorillaConvict.com) and sells for $15.
